These Arches are hollow, and are triangular or three-sided; made of wrought plate or boiler iron, by riveting three plates together at their edges. [See Fig. IV. on the diagram, which shows the hollow Arch, with Suspension Bar passing through it.] In no other form can iron be arranged to bear a greater burden than in this. By actual tests, every inch of iron in the cross section of the Arches will bear 15,000 lbs.; but in practice, we provide for a weight of not less than four times the required burden, calculated, moreover, at a pressure of 7,000 lbs. per square inch of section. From foot to foot of each Arch goes the Chord [See Figs. I., II. and V.] This is double, and binds securely the feet of the Arch to each other, so that there is no thrust or outward pressure of the Arches to require heavy abutments. The only pressure upon the masonry is vertical. In Highway Bridges, the cross-section of the Chords has one-third the number of inches in that of the Arches; and in Railroad Bridges, one-half the number of inches in cross-section. The tensile strength of an inch of iron averages 60,000 lbs.: but, as will be seen, our calculations are based upon a tensile strain of 21,000 lbs. per square inch (in Railroad Bridges 14,000 lbs.), for four times the actual burthen. The Chords are held level, or in line, by Suspension Bars. [See...
