Mr Duthie could not think of anyone that was likely to take the cargo over. At laet a happy thought struck him. He said he knew one gentleman who dealt lairgely in. brimstone, and if the captain would try him he might succeed in getting the cargo disposed of. He accordingly sent him off to the minister in question. The reception the poor caiptain got may be.readily imagined. Nevertheless--so, at least, story.wind- up--from that day forth thetminister was known ae Brimstone Johnnie. At the time of which I write, from the foot of Commerce Street down to opposite the London boat shed, there was nothing but a wilderness of stoneyards and loge of wood. The Great North of Scotland Railway was unheard of, and it was the middle of the fifties before even the Northern Agricultural Company came into existence. The Duthiee had some whoppers of hips in the American trade then, euoh as the Heno, Heroine, Brilliant, etc., etc. Andrew Leslie, one of our first iron shipbuilders--who built the Gem over at Provost Blaikie s Quay, and who died a few years ago at Newcastle almost a millionaire--and hie sister, who kept a grocer s -hop in York Street, lived tfoere; as did - Skinner s father--John Skinner, the boatbuilder--who was long in York Street before he removed to Weffinigton Street. I knew the Councillor when a boy. He is a genuine Fittie bird --nearly the only one who has been...
